NOTE AND COMMENT.

THE LAW SCHOOL.—The opening of the year brings two changes in the teaching staff. Professor George L. Clark and Assistant Professor Victor R. McLucas have resigned, and their places have been filled by the appointment of John B. Waite and Willard T. Barbour. Mr. Waite is a graduate of Yale College and of this Law School, and since his admission to the bar in 1907, has been practicing in Toledo, Ohio. Mr. Barbour is a graduate of both the Literary and Law Departments of this University and in his senior year was a member of the Board of Editorial Assistants of this Review; in 1908 he was appointed to a Rhodes Scholarship and since that time has been at Oxford University, where he has been principally engaged in work on the history of English Law, with especial reference to the development of the early forms of action.

The increase in the requirements for admission has, as anticipated, resulted in a decrease in the number of students; the decrease is not, however, so considerable as was expected, and the wisdom of requiring a better preparation for the study of the law has already been shown by the greatly superior quality of work which is being done by the present first-year class.
